He was the husband of the late Theresa Bortele Fish, and son of the late John and Eliza Ann Thackeray Fish. His sister, Miss Elizabeth M. Fish, died at Parkland on April 14th at the age of 86 years. Mr. Fish's entire life had been spent in the area and he had resided in Fallsington for 61 years.

TELLS OF EXPERIENCES AS A "PARATROOPER"

Private Joseph S. Moffo, Jr.,
Thinks Nothing of Dropping 1500 Feet

LANDED IN TREE ONCE

With 11 jumps to his credit thus far, one of Bristol's "paratroopers" is home on leave. Private Joseph S. Moffo, Jr., known to many of the younger generation in Bristol as "Jo Jo," has, since entering the U. S. Army last June, found a branch of the service much to his liking, he having entered the parachute division eight months ago. The men of the "paratroopers" are all volunteers for that particular branch of work.

Moffo's jumps, since his transfer to Company F, of the 503rd Parachute Infantry, have ranged from 1500 to 800 feet. He is at present located at Fort Bragg, N. C., being transferred there two months ago from Fort Benning, Ga.

Young Moffo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Moffo, 203 Wood street, thinks that jumping, leaping or just plain tumbling from a large transport plane with 11 other fellows, each a second or two apart, is about the most interesting type of work the army could offer.

Reaching the point decided upon for jumps, possibly a few miles from camp, the dozen young men leap out, one after the other, as the plane travels at 110 miles per hour. "We all land within a few hundred yards of each other," commented Moffo today in telling of the jumps. In July the

Baptist Church Folks Urge Banning of Liquor

Members of the First Baptist Church have taken a decided stand upon the banning of intoxicating liquors from sale in the vicinity of the various training camps.

Sunday, the church membership approved the copy of a telegram which was forwarded to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and also copies of telegrams which were dispatched to Senator Joseph F. Guffey and Senator James J. Davis.

Copies of the telegrams read: Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. President:

In the interest of the welfare of this country, we the members of the First Baptist Church of Bristol, Pennsylvania, urge you as our President and National Commander to attack more vigorously the menace of vice and intoxicating liquors around our national training camps. We believe these to be some of our national sins, and that our sons should be protected from temptation by them while called from our homes to serve in this nation's defense.

Prayerfully submitted,

First Baptist Church,

Bristol, Pa.

The following telegram was sent to Senator Joseph F. Guffey and also to Senator James J. Davis:

PAGING MR. RIPLEY!

(By "The Stroller")
Seven Mallard ducklings hatched from a nest in Hulmeville, Monday—but that isn't news.

They joined the "paratroopers" on the first day of their lives—that is news.

For the seven first saw the light of day as they broke through their shell homes in a nest on the Ne-shaminy Methodist Church roof, 25 feet above the ground. And in short order they "parachuted" to the ground from the roof edge, a drop of 20 feet. Each taking but a few seconds to regain their breath after hitting the earth, they were soon on their feet and in short order were swimming in a small pool nearby with their mother.

Spectators enjoyed the unusual show as the tiny balls of fluff ran back and forth along the hanging gutters, then up and down the rubberoid shingle roof above it. This went on for some time, the mother duck all the while quacking from a vantage point on the ground. Finally they tumbled down one by one, led by the old duck's voice, and soon all seven were swimming in nearby water.

MAKES PLEA WITH REPUBLICAN VOTERS TO GO TO POLLS TUESDAY AND SUPPORT GENERAL MARTIN

Addressing the Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women, last night, Ralph B. Umstead, made an urgent plea for the voters to go to the polls next Tuesday and participate in the selection of a nominee for governor on the Republican ticket.

The speaker praised the ability and qualifications of General Edward Martin and in his address spoke as follows:

One week from today we have a Primary Election in Pennsylvania, and I am appalled at the political apathy of the people in this State. True, political news is relegated to relatively small space in the back pages of our newspapers, but even this should not excuse the lack of attention to one of the fundamental privileges of democracy. Nor should a paramount interest in the world-wide events which are taking place—in the movement of troops, and ships and commerce—cause us to forget to use those gifts of freedom which so many lives are being sacrificed to retain. But so constructed is the average American, that, though he will lay down his life to preserve a theory of democracy, he will not unless wakened to the necessity, put himself out in the least to make practical use of it.

When Primary Election day comes, you will find throughout the State of Pennsylvania thousands upon thousands of registered voters of both major parties, who will not be sufficiently interested to want to register their choice for their party's candidates for the high offices in this State which will be filled next January. This is a deplorable condition, but it is one which it is the function of political lieutenants such as you are, and I am, to correct. It is our job to prevail upon each voter in our respective precincts to come to the polls next Tuesday, and exercise that right which is today denied to most of the people in most of the countries throughout the world.

Totalitarianism is based upon the theory of a one-party government, or a non-party government. What use is it then, to sacrifice on the field of battle to defeat Totalitarianism in Europe, if by failing to vote we lose democracy at home? We all know, if we stop to think, that as long as there are strong political parties in America, by the very balance of power between them, individual rights will be preserved.

Mrs. John W. Cooper, of Pineville, the recording secretary of the State Council of Republican Women, was the initial speaker of the evening. After congratulating the officers and members on so successful a year of endeavor as the one just concluded, she reminded members that the Lower Bucks County Council was inaugurated at a time when the shadow of war was reaching across Europe and Asia, "and we prayed God 'Not here—never again our boys on foreign shores.' But America was attacked—and we only know war is here, and that victory will come. And we know too that joy will

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN
(I. N. S. Staff Writer)
United we stand, divided we got gas rationing in the East.

All tourists have been invited to leave the stricken area and there is a possibility that New Yorkers will get to know each other before the next wave rolls in.

The official explanation is "We got plenty of gas—see? But we can't get it to you—see?"

"Can't" is the contraction American ingenuity was supposed to have eliminated from our vocabulary.

"We can do anything," we say, beating our chest, "except put every tank car and every tank truck into carrying gas to the East."

So California chambers of commerce can give the weather a rest and begin talking about the "wonderful gasoline on the west coast."

"You just drive in—say 'Fill 'er up'—and that's all there is to it," they will say.

Thought for the day! California here we come!

FREE THE FORTY THOUSAND

Now that Corregidor and the forts in Manila Bay have fallen to the Japanese, only sporadic guerrilla resistance is being offered to the invader in the 7,000 islands that constitute the Philippines. That these American fortresses held out for five months against overwhelming odds and with all supplies and reinforcements cut off is proof, if any were needed, of the fighting quality and valor of the American soldier.

From the day the Japanese attacked, American strategy in the Philippines has been to make the Jap pay dearly for every foot gained, to force him to pour troops and equipment and planes in endless array into the conflict, while the United Nations prepared to stand him off on far-flung fronts, to be followed by a great offensive.

More than forty thousand American and Filipino troops were captured by the invader in the Philippines, including probably a score of generals. Their liberation from the hands of the barbarians who hold them prisoner at the earliest moment possible should be the goal of every American. This can be accomplished only by the utter defeat of Nippon, and that will require huge armed forces and planes, ships, tanks and guns in endless array.

As long as forty thousand Americans are being held captive by a tribe of savage rats, no American can call himself free.

PEACE TALK

Peace rumors are easy to start and hard to stop. They are easy to start because the object of the war is peace. The minds of all the people are focused on victory, which means peace. They believe that the enemy must be about finished, or, at least, that he must realize that he can not win.

That being true, they believe that he should be willing to make peace while he has a bargaining position and before he so far exhausts himself as to be at a great disadvantage at the peace table.

Efforts are being made officially by Washington to guard the people against the demoralizing effect of peace rumors. This is the duty of the leadership, but the hard, common sense of the American people is the country's best protection against a letdown arising from a belief that peace is just around the corner.

The people know that the war is not only on the world-wide battle lines which the United States is maintaining. It goes clear back through the armed forces everywhere, through the production lines, into the households, and to the last dime that a child puts into a war stamp. It is the tremendous volume of that effort that the Axis powers can not approach, much less match or overcome.

Germany broke in the last war when she saw American soldiers pouring into France and American shipping unloading unlimited quantities of material for American and Allied use. She will break again, as will the Japanese, under the same weight of despair. Every day the Axis grows weaker; every day the United Nations grow stronger.

That relation must be improved by the United Nations every day, and the job of improving it will permit of no time for peace talk until Germany and Japan are rubble.

America's airplane industry trebled its output in 1941, but even this was hardly a starter for what it is accomplishing in 1942.

come with that victory, and that a better world will be born with that victory." Mrs. Cooper then reminded what conditions would be "without the Republican leaders to counsel and guide us. If we don't have that counsel we are going to suffer more from the enemies within our government." She advised continual study of the problems of government. "We want peace and joy—and we want to have ahead of us the feeling that the future is for us. Something better for the country is undoubtedly ahead." In conclusion she quoted the song "The White Cliffs of Dover," calling to mind that "There'll be love and laughter and peace ever after, tomorrow when the world is free."

The military lines of the present campaign, leading up to the primary election, were stressed by John Leslie Kilcoyne, Esquire. "It is very appropriate that the lines be in military channels in the face of the present war," he stated. "On the organization side you have a candidate who has won his spurs with honors. On the other side—well, let's call him by his right name—you have a deserter, one who is walking out on his responsibility. He is a member of the naval affairs committee of the national government, yet he deliberately turns his back on it. You don't want a man like that as governor of Pennsylvania. In the present situation do you want a military man who has been through it all and knows what it is all about, or do you want a deserter? Governor Martin has qualified himself to be governor of Pennsylvania."

At this juncture Mr. Kilcoyne spoke of the big role Pennsylvania is assuming in the conduct of the nation, reminding of the manufacturing enterprises carried on within the state. "We need a man who knows how to control those outputs. I say again—Do you want a man steeped in the traditions that brought forth MacArthur, or a man who for his own profit is leaving the job he should continue to do? We can't stand him up against a wall and shoot him as we would a deserter. But we can get rid of him with ballots."

The Hon. Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville, candidate for re-election as a member of the House of Representatives, gave a "loud, resounding amen" to Mr. Kilcoyne's address. He was loud in his praise of General Martin and others on the supporting ticket. In regard to his own record, Mr. Stockham said: "You all know the service I try to render my constituents and the duties I try to perform." He reminded the women and men assembled of the responsibilities which devolve upon them in using the right of franchise. Then he paid tribute to "the virile and sound citizen we count as our leader—Senator Joseph R. Grundy, who is always thinking of the welfare of the commonwealth and its people."

Mr. Stockham, in considering the elasticity of our form of government, told of the changes possible in order that it might fit itself into the fabric of the people, down through the years as times and methods change. "There is no reason under heaven why our constitution should not remain. It has been tried and been found good." The place which Pennsylvania fills in the prosecution of the present war was also given consideration, as the number of men sent into the armed forces was considered, likewise the vast production of goods. "And when peace comes, we must see that our governmental form remains intact—that's our job! With the peoples of the other parts of the universe persecuted as they are, we are the hope of the world. It shall be our responsibility to see that that hope is satisfied for all peoples. If we place our hand in the hand of God we shall come ultimately to a great victory."

The final speaker of the evening was Mrs. Edna Carroll, chairman of Moving Picture Censorship Committee of Pennsylvania. She used as her subject "The Republican Party in Time of War." At the outset of her address Mrs. Carroll stressed that "The most important thing we have to do today is to preserve our two-party system. Our boys will expect to find those basic things which they left exactly where they left them. And among things they will not expect to be rationed is religion. They will also expect to find that you have taken care of their privileges and their rights. They will expect that along with making bandages and knitting and the other activities brought about by a war, that you will have also taken care of our two-party system. For that is one of the things they are fighting for on foreign soil. They will expect to find no enemy within when they return. They will have expected their mothers, wives and sweethearts to have cared for these things—their heritage. Let us remember that politics is the study of government—and voting is the execution of that government." Considering the apathy noted in regard to use of the ballot, she continued by stating "In Philadelphia if we vote 40 per cent of our electorate we will have done a great job," Mrs. Carroll roundly scolded those who do not vote, yet speak against "politicians," the latter group including men and women who use their right of franchise and do all possible to get others to have more share in their government, sometimes to little avail.

Not only the war period, but the reconstruction time to follow, was given consideration. The great backing given General Martin and others on his ticket, all outstanding leaders, was mentioned by the woman speaker, who reminded of the experience General Martin has had in things of a military nature. "There are three outstanding reasons why women are supporting General Martin: 1. We have had a taste of honest government; 2. I believe politics is a profession, and General Martin is a politician; 3. We know what it is all about, or do you want a deserter? Governor Martin has qualified himself to be governor of Pennsylvania."

At this juncture Mr. Kilcoyne spoke of the big role Pennsylvania is assuming in the conduct of the nation, reminding of the manufacturing enterprises carried on within the state. "We need a man who knows how to control those outputs. I say again—Do you want a man steeped in the traditions that brought forth MacArthur, or a man who for his own profit is leaving the job he should continue to do? We can't stand him up against a wall and shoot him as we would a deserter. But we can get rid of him with ballots."

The Hon. Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville, candidate for re-election as a member of the House of Representatives, gave a "loud, resounding amen" to Mr. Kilcoyne's address. He was loud in his praise of General Martin and others on the supporting ticket. In regard to his own record, Mr. Stockham said: "You all know the service I try to render my constituents and the duties I try to perform." He reminded the women and men assembled of the responsibilities which devolve upon them in using the right of franchise. Then he paid tribute to "the virile and sound citizen we count as our leader—Senator Joseph R. Grundy, who is always thinking of the welfare of the commonwealth and its people."

Mr. Stockham, in considering the elasticity of our form of government, told of the changes possible in order that it might fit itself into the fabric of the people, down through the years as times and methods change. "There is no reason under heaven why our constitution should not remain. It has been tried and been found good." The place which Pennsylvania fills in the prosecution of the present war was also given consideration, as the number of men sent into the armed forces was considered, likewise the vast production of goods. "And when peace comes, we must see that our governmental form remains intact—that's our job! With the peoples of the other parts of the universe persecuted as they are, we are the hope of the world. It shall be our responsibility to see that that hope is satisfied for all peoples. If we place our hand in the hand of God we shall come ultimately to a great victory."

The final speaker of the evening was Mrs. Edna Carroll, chairman of Moving Picture Censorship Committee of Pennsylvania. She used as her subject "The Republican Party in Time of War." At the outset of her address Mrs. Carroll stressed that "The most important thing we have to do today is to preserve our two-party system. Our boys will expect to find those basic things which they left exactly where they left them. And among things they will not expect to be rationed is religion. They will also expect to find that you have taken care of their privileges and their rights. They will expect that along with making bandages and knitting and the other activities brought about by a war, that you will have also taken care of our two-party system. building of a telephone line on a property in Hilltown township.

The case follows an ejectment trial heard in civil court here and later an appeal handed down by the Superior Court April 15 when it upheld the Bucks County Court.

The dispute grows out of the ownership of the land on the part of the Fishers and a right-of-way on the part of the Hunsbergers.

The plaintiffs, Mr. and Mrs. Fisher, were reaffirmed the owners of the strip of land which is about 16 feet wide.

The Hunsbergers, who have been land owners since 1805, have been using the lane for years.

The plaintiffs, Mr. and Mrs. Fisher, bought the land several years ago and contend the lane is a part of their property.

Makes Plea With Republican Voters To Go To Polls Tuesday And Support General Martin

Washington in the national war plan.

Commanding Home Defense forces and the Civil Air Patrol.

Presiding over the State Council for Defense.

Supervising Air Raid Wardens, Air Raid Precautions and All Rationing Boards and Selective Service Boards.

Enforcing Anti-Sabotage, Espionage and Military Laws.

Meeting from day to day the many unique problems that total war presents in a government designed primarily for peace time operation.

General Edward Martin, soldier, lawyer, statesman; vigorous, courageous, forthright; able, experienced, tested; meets every qualification which the next four years will impose upon the Governor of Pennsylvania and the Commander-in-Chief of our Armed Forces.

For the ordinary State duties of Governor, he has been trained by terms of four years as auditor general; four years as state treasurer; and two years as adjutant general; in each of which positions his record of executive ability and fiscal knowledge has made him outstanding.

For the extraordinary duties imposed by war conditions upon the Governor as Commander-in-Chief of Pennsylvania's Armed Forces, General Martin has undergone the finest training in the world. He has served the Army through every grade and rank from private to Major General. He has conducted troops in combat and has been decorated for bravery. He has organized peace-time military units when sentiment was pacifistic, and he has organized a division of troops for war when public sentiment was critical.

He has trained the sons of Pennsylvania who now stand back to back with our Allies in the gigantic struggle to preserve our very way of life. With them, is his own boy. This man's heart, and soul, and life are dedicated to that cause in which Pennsylvania must maintain the same position which she has maintained since that great day in 1776, when the Declaration of Independence was signed in the City of Philadelphia.

You Republicans of Bucks County are having a hand in shaping the destiny of America. If next Tuesday the choice is wise you will have as your Governor, a man most capable of speeding into production those implements of war which are to be placed in the hands of your sons, that they may protect themselves and destroy our enemies; that there may be saved thousands on thousands of lives which would be sacrificed were this great arsenal to slow down, even for a short time. You can put the operation of the machinery of your State into trained hands, capable of making it produce to its utmost capacity; or you can place it in the inexperienced hands of a well-intentioned novice. Perhaps the novice may learn the trade, but until he does, the cost must be measured in human life.

I wouldn't attempt for a moment to detract from the capabilities, sincerity, or honesty of Senator James J. Davis. I am sure he says to us that he aspires to the office of Governor because he believes he can be of service to the people of Pennsylvania, that he speaks from sincerity born of honest conviction. And it may be, that the machinery of Pennsylvania in his hands, will operate smoothly and efficiently and produce the maximum. But I know that as yet, those hands are untrained in the craftsmanship of State Government and are untrained in the art of warfare and war preparation. And I know that until experience has taught that degree of efficiency which will be required of the next Governor, our State Government and our war effort must be slowed.

Expert as he is in National Affairs, Senator Davis has had no practical experience either with the normal functions of the Government of Pennsylvania, or with those extraordinary functions which war has brought into being; nor has he had the military training to equip him to command the armed forces of this State. Perhaps by experience he could acquire the necessary education, but by the time he did it would be late, too late, for the lives of those who are dependent upon the products of Pennsylvania for their preservation and their protection.

For over two decades has the Senator served with distinction at our National Capitol. In the National Legislature, has risen to be the fifteenth ranking United States Senator. He is a credit to the State and to this great Republican Party of ours which has had bestowed upon him one of the highest honors that either Party or the State could bestow. Three times he has been elected to the Senate of the United States; the last time to serve until 1945. This is no time for him to relinquish that honor which became a duty when he accepted it, to serve in a capacity for which he has been trained, or to demand an honor for which his apprenticeship does not qualify him. He has no right to ask the Party in times of war, to replace with an inexperienced United States Senator, an experienced one, in order to relieve him for a State post which another man is more able to fill.

Now is the time when the Republican Party must put forward its best candidates for it is only with its best candidates that the Party will win in November. The people are in no mood for petty politics or unqualified officials. They insist, since they themselves are making every personal sacrifice so that the war be won as quickly and efficiently as possible, that the Commonwealth, its political subdivisions, and municipalities, be conducted by the most qualified persons available.

If this Party is to survive as the major party in Pennsylvania, it can only survive by nominating for office the types of men whom the people will support.

For next Tuesday, I submit to you the following: For Governor, General Edward Martin; Lieutenant Governor, John C. Bell, Jr.; Secretary Internal Affairs, William S. Livengood, Jr.; Judge of Supreme Court, Judge Allen M. Stearns; Judge of Superior Court, Judge Joseph Stadfield; Congressman at-Large, William I. Troutman; Congressman, Congressman Charles L. Gerlach; State Senator, Senator Howard I. James; Representatives, Wilson L. Yeakel, Thomas B. Stockham.

We are looking forward to the dawn of the day which will bring peace to the world, reward our sacrifices and realize our hopes—the day when we will reconstruct our countries and our lives. Do not let it approach without full preparations.

PROBLEM FOR BAKERS

NEW ORLEANS — (INS) — Bakers will have to do something about the icing on their cakes, if they hope to meet the problems of the sugar shortage, a meeting of the Tri-State Bakers' Association in New Orleans was warned by Dr. L. W. Haas, Chicago chemist.

Haas recommended, as a preliminary step, that side-icing be eliminated completely. This would save 43 per cent on use of sugar for icing the cakes, he said. In addition, he recommended nut and fruit fillings in the icing, to displace sugar.

LANGHORNE NINE DEFEATS BRISTOL HIGH, THROWING BUNNIES INTO TIE WITH BENSLEM

By Jack Gill

One of those things that make the sports wheel whisk back and forth happened up on the high school field yesterday afternoon. As the sun shone brilliantly and as cool breezes swept in from the Delaware River, Langhorne went about its task of defeating Bristol in baseball. The final result, which was 3 to 0 in favor of the boys from Playwick, was a feather in the cap of the invaders who are near the bottom of the league standings. Needless to remark, it knocked Bristol from the league lead into a tie with Bensalem.

Young Emmerson Clark, beaten by Jim Hopkins in an earlier duel at Langhorne, made a grand comeback yesterday. He twirled a nice four hitter to outlast Hopkins, who gave up but five safe swats. Clark only walked one man and fanned eight Bristol swingers.

It was quite a contrast from the three previous games played by the locals. During that stretch the Cardinals had tabbed 41 runs and were being hailed as a hard hitting unit. But a layoff of nearly two weeks, during which the senior class visited Washington after a couple of open dates on the schedule, failed to sharpen their play.

Langhorne picked up one in the third when Cialella fumbled Nigra's grounder to start the inning. Sodano hit a single to left field and it got through Ernie Davis. Nigra sped to third and Sodano reached second on the miscue. Reed struck out, but Nigra scored a moment later on Mercer's rap to second.

A hit by Sodano was responsible for two more Langhorne runs in the seventh inning. Previous to his blast, Lou Spattacini had walked and Unpstead had hit safely past Massi at third.

EDGELY A. C. CAPTURES THIRD STRAIGHT GAME

Hitting at will, Eddie DeKoy's Edgely A. C. captured its third straight game of the Bristol Suburban League last evening, trouncing St. Ann's A. A. 10-2, on the latter's field. It also marked the first setback of the season for the "Saints."

The Edgelyites collected a total of fourteen hits off the delivery of Paul Cervello. But two fast double-plays and fine defensive work by "Sugar" Sallustio prevented the Edgely score from mounting. Leading the attack against Cervello was the diminutive Ralph Linck who became the first batter to connect for four, including a double.

Turner Ashby, the veteran twirler, was on the hill for the winners. Though what he lacked in speed, Ashby exhibited in hooks as he set down the St. Ann's youths with three hits. The only bright spot in the St. Ann's side of the picture was a long home run from the bat of Paul Gielow.

To Show Bomb Films To Township Residents

 Joseph A. McGucken, factory protection engineer, of Philadelphia, who has had an extensive training course at the Edgewood, N. J., arsenal on the subject of the incendiary bomb will be present to speak. Mr. McGucken, through the aid of the pictures, will give the "do's" and "don'ts" in the handling of a blazing fire bomb.

Chief air raid wardens and the chiefs of the emergency police have been instructed to call their men together to assure their attendance at this meeting. Air wardens and police will also be instructed to visit the homes on their posts to issue special invitations in an effort to have a representative from each home attend. The Council also suggests that arrangements be made among residents to have at least five persons ride in one car, to eliminate the use of too much gasoline in transportation to the high school.

In the announcement the Council also asked that each person attending take a small American flag which will be used during the program.

Members of all defense units in Bristol Township have been instructed to attend.

"paratroops" will have in connection with map reading practice, jumps in which about one-half of the battalion will participate. Taken 100 miles from camp the men will leap from the big planes. Five days will be allowed for them to return to camp, using their experience in map reading to take them through wood-land, over mountains, through swamps, or whatever terrain is offered. "We will work in squads of 12 men each," he added. Each parachutist, as he leaves the plane, is armed with a pistol and a rifle; with the officers having "Tommy guns," a type of sub-machine gun. Each will be given a supply of food to aid them on the long trek back to camp when the big hop is made in July.

Only in one of his jumps did Moffo land in a tree, finding his body dangling 15 feet from the ground. "I swung myself into the trunk of the tree, and was then able to unfasten the harness," he commented. He has never sustained any injuries in his jumps, he adds. The men use a static-line type of parachute which is automatic.

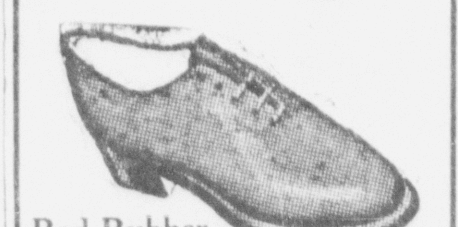

"Paratroops," even in practice get plenty of leg exercise, as they always walk back to camp. "You have no sensation of falling at all, once the parachute opens," states Moffo. "It appears to the jumper as he dangles beneath the parachute that he is suspended in air, and that the ground gradually comes up to meet him." Moffo has a brother in army service also. Private Augustine Moffo, being located at Fort Dix, N. J.

OUR COUNTRY IS AT WAR!

GENERAL EDWARD MARTIN
 REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Pennsylvania will be called upon to furnish from its resources vastly more than any other State as its contribution in the "all out" effort. Included in this contribution—before a year passes—will probably be 700,000 of its boys as soldiers. On May 19th Primary elections will be held for the respective Party candidates for State offices, and those elected in November will hold office for four years from January next.

ATTENTION REPUBLICANS!

IN VIEW of the tragedies this war has brought to the Democracies of the world —
 IN VIEW of the enemy already destroying our shipping and killing our citizens within fifty miles of our borders —
 IN VIEW of the possibility of enemy war devices bombing our industrial centers now engaged in the production of essential war materials —
 IN VIEW of the possible destruction of our centers of population —
 IN VIEW of possible necessary evacuation of these centers —
 IN VIEW of the 250,000 men and women already organized for civilian defense, who in case of happenings above outlined, would require experienced direction of their activities —
 May we ask your consideration of the type of man we should support for our Republican nomination for the office of Governor?
 Would our well considered opinion help you to a conclusion?

PENNSYLVANIA SHOULD HAVE

A man of wide experience in the management of the civilian affairs of our State.
 A man of experience and efficiency in handling the details of Party affairs.
 And, above all, a man of proven ability and experience as a soldier.
 Fortunately the age limit of sixty-two years removed General Edward Martin from the command of combat troops, and later the war department made him available to be a candidate of his Party for the office of Governor.
 General Martin, in forty-three years of military service, rose from private to Pennsylvania No. 1 soldier, serving in three wars, was twice wounded and once gassed—his special assignment being training or fighting with combat troops.
 General Martin served his State four years as Auditor General and four years as State Treasurer, thus gaining wide experience in our State's public business. In both these elections he won by Republican majorities of slightly less than a million votes.
 General Martin for six years served his Party as Chairman of the Republican State Committee, winning the respect and confidence of Party leaders and successfully directing its affairs.
 General Martin's nomination on May 19th and election in November, would place your State during the next four years in the hands of a safe, experienced and courageous official, in whom you would have confidence from both a civilian and military standpoint.

Vote for General Edward Martin in Pennsylvania's Republican Primaries, May 19th next
